

PRESS RELEASE

Kenyan singer/songwriter Chess Nthusi has released a set of house remixes of her dancehall hit single "Give It To You". This is the first release of the Kenyan songstress under the American independent label.

Kult Records (USA) peeps loved Chess' voice and songwriting abilities when they received a copy of "Give it to you" from her management Panamusiq, a club banger dancehall tune produced by Dr. Sappy.

The song is in English and Swahili as per Chess native language of Kenya. Which bilingual lyrics, are very much in tune with the pulse of the Club life as bi-lingual songs are finally been heard on dancefloors across the globe to celebrate our cultural diversities.

Immediately, the potential for the song to cross over into the dance/house genre was evident so after signing Chess to the label, KULT appointed a number of international producers to make some remixes of the song just in time for the summer.

Enjoy this sexy tune with Nick Bertossi's Tech House / Big Room remix and or with a superb Progressive House dub interpretation by Lancaster Prod. And, if you are by the beach you most definitely want to hear the original crossover version to get you in the mood!

The remixes are currently available exclusively on Beatport, the world largest digital platform for Electronic Music. Link: <https://www.beatport.com/release/give-it-to-you/2298052#>

After the pre-release period, the remixes will be available on most music stores and streaming services across the world.

Chess is signed to the Pan African management company Panamusiq which represents artists from Cameroon, Kenya, Nigeria, Tanzania and South Africa.
